Frequently Asked Questions

What is Naturopathy?

Naturopathy treats your body as whole and doesn't just concentrate on relieving the symptoms of a single problem but teaches you how to maintain a healthy body which will keep illness and ailments away. So when you are in a consultation with the naturopath you will be asked to give a complete run-down of your lifestyle, diet and eating patterns. And then from there you will be given a personalised plan to get your body functioning perfectly again - by using only natural products and achievable fitness goals. Naturopaths have an extensive knowledge of medical treatments and drugs, as well as a complete understanding of the medicinal value of plants and herbs. So you will be advised on herbal preparations and nutritional diet. The best analogy for the benefits of naturopathy is to think about your car.

Do you think it is best to drive it into the ground and only get fixed at a time when it goes wrong? Or do you reckon its best to treat it with some respect; regularly checking the oil and air levels weekly and giving it a full service at regular intervals?

What is Homoeopathy?

This is a system of medicine that starts by looking at your total health picture and individual ways in which the body has its own healing powers. In homoeopathic treatments the pattern of the patient's symptoms is matched with those of a remedy. The more closely the remedy pattern matches that of the patient, the more effective will be the cure. Homoeopathy is based on the philosophy cures like. The homoeopath will take into consideration the physical, mental and emotional state of the individual, and match it with the remedy best suited to them. Remedies are dispensed in a pill or drop form. Once again by treating the whole person - physical, spiritual and emotional and not separating everything up, you are helping your body to restore itself.

What is Ayurvedic Medicine?

It has been acknowledged as the world's oldest system of health care and the most ancient and holistic. It is recognised by the World Health Organization as an effective, traditional health treatment. It aims for well being (constitutional) analysis, pulse diagnosis, tongue and other techniques to determine appropriate treatment. Advice on suitable diet, exercise for your constitutional type and daily routine are prescribed. Also, Ayurvedic herbal and mineral remedies and other treatments may be recommended to maximise the healing process and improve general well-being.

What is Acupuncture?

Acupuncture takes a holistic approach to understanding normal function and disease processes and focuses as much on the prevention of illness as on the treatment. When healthy, an abundant supply of Qi or "life energy" flows through the body's meridians (a network of invisible channels through the body). If the flow of Qi in the meridians becomes blocked or there is an inadequate supply of Qi, then the body fails to maintain harmony, balance and order, and disease or illness follows.

This can result from stress, overwork, poor diet, disease pathogens, weather and environmental conditions, and other lifestyle factors and becomes evident to the practitioner through observable signs of bodily dysfunction. The practitioner looks carefully for these signs of health and dysfunction, paying particular attention not only to the presenting signs and symptoms, but also to the medical history, general constitution, and the pulse and tongue.

Acupuncture treatment involves the insertion of fine, sterile needles into specific sites (acupuncture points) along the body's meridians to clear energy blockages and encourage the normal flow of Qi through the individual. The practitioner may also stimulate the acupuncture points using other methods, including moxibustion, cupping, laser therapy, electro-stimulation and massage, in order to re-establish the flow of Qi.

As a natural form of healing, acupuncture has the following benefits:

- Provides drug-free pain relief.
- Effectively treats a wide range of acute and chronic ailments.
- Treats the underlying cause of disease and illness as well as the symptoms.
- Provides an holistic approach to the treatment of disease and illness, linking body, mind and emotions.
- Assists in the prevention against disease and illness as well as the maintenance of general well-being.

How long will be the first consultation?

Approximately 1 hour. Some patients could take longer depending on the presenting health concerns.

What to expect during the consultation?

You will be asked a number of questions in regards to your past and current health history, digestion, eating habits, bowel function, sleep, lifestyle habits and mental and emotional characteristics. These will provide the practitioner information to assess imbalances and to provide the correct programme for you. The Practitioner may perform a number of physical tests including urine, blood, tongue, pulse and body diagnosis. This full health assessment also includes Iridology diagnosis.

What is Iridology?

Iridology is the science and practice that reveals body constitution, inherent weaknesses, levels of health and inflammation in the tissues by analyzing the delicate structures of the iris. The iris is the extention of the brain so the iris is connected to every organ and tissue of the body by way of the nervous system. The iris reveals an individuals strengths and weaknesses and what has been done to the body through correct or incorrect living habits by way of the nervous system. The iris reveals an individuals strengths and weaknesses and what has been done to the body through correct or incorrect living habits.

Can I bring a diary of my symptoms and other info relating to my condition?
That will help!

Can I bring my past and recent blood tests results and if any prescriptions (medication and supplements)prescribed in the last 1 year?
Definitely.

What about Xray, ultrasound or allergy tests?
Yes bring it with you on the first consultation.

Can I expect to have more tests done?
Yes (it will help get to the bottom of the problem).

Will my lifestyle and diet be changed?
Most possibly, to help you get better sooner. If needed sometimes quite a few changes are made depending on the severity of the condition presented. Most times the changes are quite achievable and give positive results to your wellbeing.

What type of treatment will I be given?
A holistic approach is taken to restore vitality and health. Treatments may aim to correct your digestion, remove toxins, restore balance and rejuvenate your body and mind.

They can include: food and herbs as medicine, individualised and specific lifestyle routines, techniques to enhance mental wellbeing, personalised exercise program, detox program, homeopathic medications, acupuncture, remedial massage and herbal prescriptions.

When can I see changes in my health?
Every individual is different and depending upon their immune systems could range between 7 days to 30 days.
